JEMPHIS APPEAL.

BLUE EYES. FROM THE GENERAL line eyes are tuil of danger – hewere their tender slow!
They'll have thy heart a skininger
To penceful hours below!
I warn you, men, give earnest heed!
Let no oright eyes your heart mislead!
And when hits even your glances win,
Look not too deep—too neep therein!

Bine eyes from heaven are lighted Withholy, soul-born glow, To cheer poor man ben-ghied, And charm him out of wos. And when cold winter clouds arias, And shroud in gray the sunny skies, Tism let blue eyes my glainess win i I find my sky—my day, therein!

Chains on a Southern woman! Chains!

Base badges of defeat!
What hand has dared to place them there?
Binding your rolds of flowing hair!
Coiling like snak a o'er your besoms fair—
A strange and foul concent!

Chains on a Southern woman—chains?

Vite types of blacked shame!

Worn in the light of the monday sun,
Worn in the sight of the mon who won
Their Day 'respect, when hope was gond,
Though not their deathless hand? Chains on a Southern woman—chains! Infamy's fittest brand! Hung o'er inarts that once threshed high, in those bester days, long since gone by, When ye sent your feven ones forth to die For their charished motheriand!

Chains on a Southern woman—chains!

Hack emblers of disgraps!

Te may cause to mourn for your glories fied.

Te may hash your sighs for a cause now dead

But ye should not wear, without blushes red.

The badge of a failen race!

Chains on a Southern woman—chains!
Submission flaunted wide!
Fring them away from your scorntal sight!
Lossen their fangs from your stooms bright!
Lossen their fangs from your souss on white!
Trainple them down with pride!

Chains on a Southern woman—chains!

Away with the clauking things!
They laif the tale of a fortness strong.
Where was done a deed of the darkest wrong.
And a captive's heart was to third long.
By the sound of their free rings! Chains on a Southern woman—chains:

Away with the fivery base!

If yo be conquered, are ye cast down?

Need west a chain though lost year crown?

Noy, ith your liests with your past renown,
And walk in unbittered gross.
